

System Acceptance

The clustering is stable and the clusters respond to connected areas in space. With the elbow method the optimum number of clusters have been found which is not large which is a sign of good clustering. The centroids of clusters are well separated, the intercluster distance is more and the intracluster distance is less. Hence, model can be accepted